INSTITUTIONAL OVERVIEW

Institutional Overview

Established in 1998, the Aurum Institute is an African Public Benefit Organisation whose mission is to improve the health of people and communities living in poverty through innovation in global health research, systems strengthening, and service delivery, specifically in the fields of HIV and TB.

The organisation's legal structure comprises several country offices (locally incorporated), and four affiliates. It also has office branches (not incorporated) in Namibia and eSwatini.

Operationally, the organisation has an international unit that manages multi-national projects, and units in Ghana, Mozambique and South Africa that focus on work in each country respectively. With an overall staff complement of 3500 employees, Aurum's work spans the cascade of healthcare from innovation to implementation, as illustrated below.

Our Model: Bridging the worlds of research, policy and implementation for impact

Aurum has a number of specialised areas within HIV, TB and Covid. A multidisciplinary team of scientists and subject matter specialists supports each project depending on the type of expertise needed.
